

DRAWING INFERENCES

What is An Inference?

An inference is a logical conclusion based on the facts written in a text. When you read, you draw inferences or make conclusions based on what you read. The conclusion may not be stated in the text, but from what the writing tells the reader, the reader infers what is meant.

You can use...

1. facts and details written in the text
2. your background knowledge: what you have learned

- what is going to happen next in a story

Example:

It was 6:00 PM. Matt set the table. He was sure to give everyone a plate, fork, spoon, knife, napkin, and a glass. His Mom called Matt and the rest of the family to the table.

What can we infer after reading this paragraph?

We can infer that Matt and his family are about to eat dinner.
