

CANADA

Canada has a rich history of being home to many aboriginal peoples, including Indian tribes and the Inuit. When European explorers began to reach Canada, they found a land rich in resources and began to settle in this area of North America.

Can 33rd
Can any

PREVIEW

Please Sign In or Sign Up to download the printable version of this worksheet

In the 14th and 15th centuries, French settlements were established in what we know as Canada today. Given the name New France, places such as Quebec City and Newfoundland became permanent settlements. The French eventually fell under British control but they were allowed to continue practicing many of their cultural traditions and beliefs.

When Canada finally became a federation, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Ontario, and Quebec entered into the union. From 1867 to 1949, 6 provinces also entered the Confederation, creating the ten Canadian provinces that make up the nation today.

PREVIEW

Please Sign In or Sign Up to download the printable version of this worksheet

